

LOOKING BACK AT LAST YEAR

Just like in the 2010 regular season, which concluded with an 80-82 record, the Angels finished two games below .500 (13-15) during 2010 spring training, which was the direct result of their two games below .500 record at their winter home in Tempe, where they drew an average crowd of 6,940. That marked an increase of 1,635 per home game from 2009 and ranked the Angels 5th in average attendance out of the 15 teams that train in Arizona.

2010 Home Record: 6-8-2

Highest Attendance: 8,911 (vs. Diamondbacks on March 17)

Lowest Attendance: 3,536 (vs. Padres on March 9)
